The Glenn Henry Collection Glenn: Henry resided in Washington Boro on the actual Washington Boro Susquehannock Village site (36La8). Unfortunately Glenn recently passed away at the age of 70. His family decided to share the family artifact collection with other collectors and will be featured in our November 5th auction. At the age of 15, Glenn had an unfortunate life-altering event when he became paralyzed after a neck injury at a swimming pool.

His wife , Patricia, and his children reminisce on his resilience as a human being and his ability to not let this define him. Glenn went on to be a great father, active community and church member, successful business owner and a founder of the Blue Rock Heritage Center.

The Henry collection consists of mainly family and friend finds on the Washington Boro Village site and Strickler site. Glenn's family remembers spending countless hours sifting and finding beads and other artifacts during their early years. In addition to family and friends, a portion of the collection was excavated by Elizabethtown College. For several years the Henry family allowed the college to complete excavations for a field school that was part of the Anthropology/Archaeology program. I reminisce as we begin to sort and catalog this collection as I was part of the field school one year and found several of the pieces in the collection during our excavation.

Mr. Hallman has amassed a nice collection consisting of both personal finds and purchases over his long time of collecting. A large portion of his collection is from the Berks County region. Included from his collection is a nice selection of axes he collected.

Mr. Barry George has been looking for artifacts since his father and mother introduced him to the world of collecting artifacts back in 1969. His Grandfather started collecting beginning in 1898. He had a keen interest in the culture of the indigenous people. Collecting artifacts carried on through Barry's life and has since amassed a great collection of artifacts, letting some of his pieces go in this auction.

Walt Podpora from New Jersey has been collecting for a large number of years and he has amassed a wonderful collection of artifacts. He decided to consign some artifacts from his personal collection within this auction.
